Ambulance wait riles community

Following the revelation in last week's Corryong Courier that the Victorian Premier, Daniel Andrews, would investigate why Corryong woman, Phyllis Boardman (94) had to wait five hours for an ambulance, social media has gone into overdrive on the issue.

Mrs Boardman was left on the floor of her kitchen with a broken hip while waiting for an ambulance and her case was raised by Opposition Leader, Matthew Guy, in the Victorian Parliament last week.

Mr Andrews said he would ask the Health Department for answers.

The average response time in the Towong Shire for Code 1 emergencies is more than 31 minutes against a benchmark of 15.

The majority of social media comments focused on the problems with the ambulance service itself while local paramedics were praised for their efforts.

Microgrid gives excellent return

By Ian Cesa
Vice Chair, Upper Murray Inc. (UMI)
The purpose of this article is to correct some misinformation that was contained in a letter to the editor in the June 9th edition of the Corryong Courier.

The conclusion of the letter, contained in the heading, is that the "microgrid" described by the writer was a "poor return on investment."

Unfortunately, the "grapevine" from which the writer has obtained his/her information is working exactly as grapevines usually do, which is to say that different parts of story get conflated, some get exaggerated and important details get lost, resulting in an understanding that is far from the truth.

So, let's take this opportunity to clarify for everyone in the community, what is really happening.

There are few different moving parts, so it is understandable that they might be conflated.

"Upgrading 50 homes to a micro-grid."

There will be no upgrading 50 homes to a micro-grid. This statement conflates two elements of two different, multi-element programs going on.

Mondo Energy Solutions and the Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning (DELWP) are running a program to install solar and battery systems on up to 50 homes in Corryong as part of a broader project to improve the disaster resilience of three fire affected communities - Corryong, Omeo and Mallacoota.

At present, there has been significant interest from households that have signed up for this program. The purpose of this program is to prepare Corryong better for the future establishment of a microgrid to provide energy resilience in the case of an emergency.

More details of this program can be found at <https://engage.vic.gov.au/project/community-microgrids/page/community-microgrids-corryong>.

"Connected to a micro-grid with a battery at the Corryong Recreation Reserve."

There will be a battery at the Corryong Recreation Reserve. However, it has no connection to the homes that might receive solar and battery systems from the Mondo and DELWP program mentioned above.

The battery at the reserve is part of the Upper Murray Energy Resilience and Reliability Project (UMERRP) being carried out through a bushfire recovery grant to Upper Murray Inc. (UMI) from Bushfire Recovery Victoria (BRV) and Regional Development Victoria (RDV).

It is one of three being installed under this grant. There are others at Corryong Health and Walwa Bush Nursing Centre.

These batteries are one of three different elements of this project, that also includes distributed energy resources at locations deemed critical in the event of an emergency.

You can read more about this project at <https://uppermurrayinc.com.au/energy-resilience-reliability-project>.

"Reportedly at a cost of $4M or $80,000 per home."

It is not clear where the $4M figure comes from. The Mondo/DELWP program has never publicly announced the amount of funding specifically for Corryong. They have only announced the total amount being spent across the aforementioned three fire affected communities, some of which will go towards the installation of solar and batteries on the homes that have signed up.

The UMERRP mentioned above has grants totalling $2.9 million dollars. None of the grant money for the UMERRP project is being spent on any of the 50 homes mentioned in the letter. All of it will be spent, as the name of the project suggests, on improving the resilience and reliability of the energy available to facilities and services that are essential during an emergency.

The Events Centre at the Corryong Recreation Reserve is a 'place of last resort' and the battery going there will contribute to its energy security during a future emergency. The same applies to Corryong Health, Walwa Bush Nursing Centre and all of the 25 other community facilities and essential services where more reliable energy systems are being installed.

"We are doing this in the name of #NetZero Carbon."

There are three goals to these projects that supersede any discussion of carbon emissions reduction, let alone "NetZero carbon."

First is the specific goal of hardening the electricity and communications infrastructure across the Upper Murray so that there is some functionality when the next emergency situation comes.

We all saw the devastating consequences of the 2020 bushfires. We want to be better prepared next time.

Further, a major goal of these projects is to improve the reliability of electricity in normal times too.

In our investigation in preparation for applying for grants we discovered that, in the five years leading up to the end of 2018, Corryong township experienced an average of 36 unplanned outages per year, or about three causing untold disruption to normal life for both residents and businesses.

The infrastructure being installed as part of these projects will go a long way towards eliminating these outages.

Finally and perhaps most importantly to some of the facilities receiving these distributed energy resources, there will be substantial savings in energy costs.

Based on current estimates of consumption at these facilities and estimates of cost savings based on other similar projects, we should expect energy savings of more than $400,000 annually.

These savings results in $400,000 per year that is available for further investment in the Upper Murray, rather than any profits being transferred to the accounts of offshore investors.

At the rate of $400,000 per year, estimated at 2019 electricity rates (!), expenditure of $2.9 million produces an excellent return on investment!

Council announces special rate variation

From 1 July 2022 Snowy Valleys Council (SVC) has announced it will implement a Special Rate Variation.

At its June 2022 meeting, council resolved to increase rating income for 2022-23 by 15.7 per cent.

In May 2022 IPART approved a new and permanent Special Rate Variation (SRV) of 35.95 per cent (inclusive of the rate peg) introduced over two years in 2022-23 and 2023-24. The increased rating level at the completion of 2023-24 will then remain permanently and be the amount subject to any future increases.

The approved purpose of the SRV is to:-

- Continue delivering existing service levels, as outlined in the 2022-23 Delivery Program and Operational Plan

- Manage a range of financial impacts (e.g. maintenance of grant-funded new assets and natural disasters)

- Ensure long-term financial sustainability

Detailed information relating to the operational and long-term budgets, projects, services and actions council will be completing during 2022-23 is contained within its Integrated Planning and Reporting suite of documents which was also adopted at the June council meeting.

Property owners are encouraged to use the online rates calculator to estimate the change to ordinary rates for individual properties by entering the assessment number provided on their annual rates notices at www.svc.nsw.gov.au/sr.

New chief starts

Council has appointed Hamish McNulty as the organisation's interim Chief Executive Officer (CEO), following the resignation of Matthew Hyde.

Mr McNulty has extensive experience in NSW Local Government and previously held the position of General Manager at the merged Cumberland Council.

Mr McNulty brings with him a strong background in financial management, communications and engagement and a significant understanding of the importance of engaging with the community.

More funding goes to bushfire recovery

Sixty-seven projects across remote, rural and regional Australia will share in $776,583 in grants thanks to FRRR's Strengthening Rural Communities (SRC) program.

These projects are grassroots initiatives run by organisations led by local people that will strengthen their communities and have direct benefits for those living in them.

In this round of funding, 26 of the projects receiving funding support ongoing recovery from the 2019/20 Black Summer bushfires.

These initiatives, which will share $444,552, include a grant of $24,000 to the Country Fire Authority (CFA) Corryong Brigade.

The funding will be used to modernise the kitchen to improve the capacity of the brigade to support bushfire recovery and preparedness.

There are also 41 projects being funded through the Small & Vital stream of the SRC program, which will share in a total of $332,031.

Jill Karena, Place Portfolio Lead at FRRR, said that a noticeable trend emerged in this latest

The Corryong brigade has received funding to upgrade its kitchen round of applications.

"Interestingly, we saw a strong interest for community gardens in this round," she said.

"With the cost of living rising on top of the food shortages that are happening as a result of the pandemic and natural disasters like drought and floods, there are growing concerns in rural areas about food security and the lack of access to nutritious, affordable food.

"This is why flexible programs like SRC are crucial. The funding from this program can be used where community leaders see the greatest need.

"Our climate and our economy are rapidly evolving and these grants can be used to support a broad range of community-led, grassroots initiatives that are helping to address very current issues in real time," Ms Karena said.

A full list of grant recipients is available on FRRR's website.

The SRC program is collaboratively supported by many generous donors, which are acknowledged on FRRR's website.

This program always accepts applications and thanks to recent support from the Australian government, there is now a Covid-recovery stream - Rebuilding Rural Communities. Local NFPs and community groups are encouraged to review the expanded program guidelines and apply.

More information about the SRC program is available at www.frrr.org.au/src.

Farmers speak up for a fair go

The Victorian Farmers Federation (VFF) has launched its state election platform ahead of this year's poll in November.

Speaking at the VFF's Grains and Livestock Conference at Ballarat this week, VFF President Emma Germano said she was proud to present a positive agenda that focussed on delivering for farmers and regional communities.

"The VFF has pulled together a policy platform that doesn't just speak to the issues farmers are facing, but the issues faced by all regional communities," she said.

Ms Germano said the commitments being sought as part of the VFF's Fair Go For Regional Victoria campaign includes critical investment into regional road and rail, housing, healthcare, biosecurity, jobs and environmental management amongst a host of others.

"Whether it's how we work together to maintain the profitability of industry, how we deal with a changing climate or how we continue to sustain thriving communities with a lifestyle envied by those in Melbourne - farmers are well placed to identify the issues that matter to all regional Victorians and to offer solutions," she said.

Ms Germano also shared insight into the VFF's campaign strategy, saying that farmers will be active in lobbying candidates ahead of the election.

"The VFF will be active across the state during this election," she said.

"Where we can, we will be on the ground in marginal electorates pushing the message that regional Victoria deserves a fair go."

"Our approach will be to run a sophisticated campaign using digital media to speak directly to voters in these seats."

Ms Germano concluded by encouraging farmers to take a stand and make their voices heard at the election.

"We are committed to ensuring regional Victoria is front and centre at this election and equally to working with all parties and candidates to deliver a better future for our state," she said.

The VFF's election platform document can be accessed on the VFF website.

Supplier adds another string to the bow

Snowy Hydro is again expanding its renewable energy portfolio, signing a contract to purchase power and renewables certificates from a new CWP Renewables wind farm development in New South Wales.

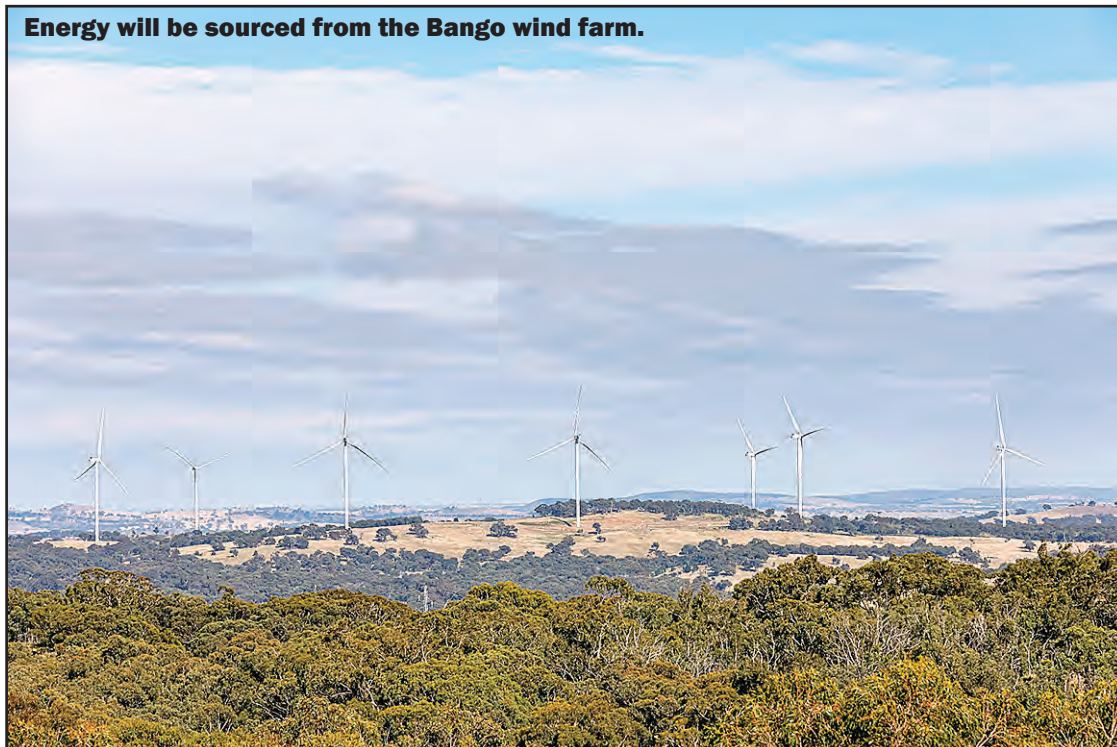

The deal with the Uungula wind farm near Wellington is the 12th for Snowy Hydro, a leader in clean energy and Australia's renewable energy transition.

Managing Director and CEO, Paul Broad, said the agreement to purchase 200 megawatts of Uungula's output for a 15-year term supported Snowy Hydro's commitment to providing affordable, reliable and clean energy to its commercial and industrial customers.

"Renewables are the future and by combining our contracted wind and solar projects with our on-demand hydro assets we can provide 'firm', secure, low-emissions energy to the market, while keeping the lights on," Mr Broad said.

"This new deal with CWP Renewables is targeted to start in 2026 after construction of Uungula is completed and will increase the total energy that Snowy purchases from renewables projects to 4.1 terawatt hours each year."

Energy will be sourced from the Bango wind farm.

CWP Renewables CEO, Jason Willoughby, welcomed the second partnership with Snowy Hydro and said the agreement confirmed the ongoing demand for renewables.

"At 414 megawatts, Uungula will be our largest wind farm to date and provide enough clean electricity to power more than 200,000 homes," Mr Willoughby said.

"It's great to have Snowy Hydro on-board as a foundation offtaker for the project, which in turn helps us continue to develop our pipeline of renewable projects."

CWP Renewables currently operates and owns 650MW of renewable energy assets in the National Electricity Market and has another 5GW of wind, storage and farming projects in its near-medium term development portfolio.

Snowy Hydro already partners with CWP Renewables through an offtake agreement for power from its Bango wind farm, north of Yass.

"We are pleased to be working again with CWP Renewables and growing our clean energy business," Mr Broad said.

"This partnership is another example of Snowy Hydro securing greater investment in renewables across Australia, which is a win-win for everyone."

Uungula Wind Farm has received development approval and construction is planned to start this year, supporting more than 260 jobs.

Know where your firewood comes from

The Conservation Regulator and Parks Victoria are urging people purchasing firewood this winter to think before they buy by asking some key questions, to help stop illegal firewood operators.

Each year Victorians are caught out unintentionally buying illegally sourced firewood which can lead to the loss of important wildlife habitat such as hollow logs and dead trees.

Firewood is often sold on social media websites, at roadside stalls and by word of mouth and it can be difficult for customers to know where firewood for sale comes from, so before buying check the following information:-

- Where does your wood come from? Your firewood seller should be able to provide the details of where the wood they are supplying is sourced from. This includes a wholesale supplier, commercial wood lot or private land with the permission of the landowner.

- Can I get a receipt? Your firewood seller should provide a tax receipt with a business name and ABN listed.

- Why is the wood so cheap? If you're buying firewood through social media websites and the firewood seems cheap, ask your supplier why.

The Conservation Regulator targets those suspected of unlawfully collecting and selling firewood from public land. The community can play a key role by reporting any suspicious behaviour to DELWP on 136 186.

Parks Victoria Senior Manager Enforcement and Regulatory Services, Mark Breguet, said "The illegal removal and sale of firewood from parks and reserves causes impacts that last for generations.

"It is critical for the protection of these areas and the species that rely upon timber for habitat, that purchasers of firewood ensure it is legally sourced."

Offenders found guilty of cutting or taking away more than two cubic metres of fallen or felled trees from Crown land face a maximum penalty of $9,087 and/or one year imprisonment. Individuals may also face an additional fine of up to $9,087 for destruction of wildlife habitat, while vehicles and equipment such as chainsaws and trailers may also be seized and forfeited upon conviction.

Landcare grants close next month

Minister for Energy, Environment and Climate Change, Lily D'Ambrosio, has opened the latest round of the Victorian Landcare Grants, with $3.35 million funding available to Landcare and environmental volunteering groups and networks for on-ground works, education, and capacity building projects that protect, enhance, and restore our land and natural environment.

Grants of up to $20,000 are available for on-ground projects and support grants of up to $500 are available to help with group administration and running costs.

The grants are open across Victoria – including the state's north-east – to environmental volunteering groups, including Landcare groups and networks, Friends groups, Conservation Management Networks, Committees of Management, Coastcare groups and Aboriginal groups to support the important work they do in protecting and restoring our land and environment.

This funding will be delivered through Victoria's Catchment Management Authorities (CMAs) – including North East CMA – demonstrating the important environmental outcomes that can be achieved through collaboration between CMAs, environmental groups, local communities, and the government.

North East CMA Chief Executive Officer, Katie Warner, said the Victorian Landcare Grants aimed to fund projects that addressed local, regional and state land and environment priorities.

Ms Warner said they also aimed to sustain Landcare and other environmental volunteer groups and networks by providing support grants, particularly for those groups whose continuing existence would benefit from this support.

"We continue to work closely with the Landcare groups and networks within our region to help them to meet land and environment goals that are developed within our communities," she said.

The Victorian Landcare Grants support the implementation of Protecting Victoria's Environment – Biodiversity 2037, a 20-year plan to stop the decline of our native plants and animals and improve our natural environment and Victorians Volunteering for Nature – Environmental Volunteering Plan.

Applications close at 5pm on Tuesday 26 July, 2022.

Safety training included for cultural burning

Twelve Traditional Owners from the Duduroa Dhargal and Bangerang Aboriginal Corporations completed an extensive fire training course this month, aimed at giving them enhanced skills in wildfire suppression and controlled fuel reduction burns.

The training helps Traditional Owners meet insurance and administrative requirements for undertaking cultural burning.

“Cultural burning has been carried out by our people for a long, long time,” Duduroa Dhargal senior elder, Uncle Phil Murray, said.

“We use burning for lots of different reasons – like increasing food resources, protecting our sacred cultural sites, cleaning up and removing weeds and reducing forest fuel loads to maintain the safety of our people during the months when the risk of bushfire is increased”.

Uncle Phil said many private landholders are supportive of cultural burns to increase the health of their land and reduce fire risk and interest in using cultural burns on public land is also increasing.

“The amount of red tape and administration we need to do now – we’ve previously been unable to get the insurance required to carry out these burns on public and private land,” he explained.

“This training we’re doing will give us the same formal skills as a trained volunteer firefighter and this helps us to meet the insurance requirements.”

Cultural burning has been gaining traction as a tool to help government, local authorities and private landholders deal with the threat of bushfire under a rapidly changing climate.

Bangerang senior elder, Uncle Darren Atkinson, said it involved burning off the bush during spring and autumn when the fuels are slightly damper and the weather is cooler.

“The small scale of the burns keeps the fires from getting really big and getting out of control, so they’re really low-risk,” Uncle Darren said.

“We really see cultural burning as an ideal way of helping the government to protect public land where our cultural sites are positioned close to human settlements and support habitat for threatened species.

The training course was supported by the North East Catchment Management Authority and Trust for Nature through funding from the Australian government.

Participants enhanced their skills in the cultural burning program.

Rough as guts roads send costs skyrocketing

Transport operators have exposed the toll of regional Victoria’s crumbling road network, with recent reports revealing rough roads are making it harder to hire truck drivers and sending the cost of vehicle repairs skyrocketing.

“Transport operators who have been involved in the industry for decades say road quality is dragging down retention of drivers who don’t want to drive a road network that’s as rough as guts,” said Shadow Minister for Roads, Steph Ryan “Regional Victorian motorists are also demanding answers after media reports last week exposed the Victorian government’s secret, systematic raid of a public trust fund intended to be invested back into road safety.

“When the Better Roads Victoria trust account was established a third was required to be put back into regional Victoria but murky reporting by the government left serious questions about where millions of dollars have ended up.

“Country roads are a mess of dangerous potholes and hazards, risking the lives of country Victorian drivers every single day,” Ms Ryan said.

“Parliamentary hearings also recently exposed more cuts in the 2022-23 Budget, making the total cut from road asset management to $200M in the past two years.

“I’m taking a list of Victoria’s worst roads to the Minister later this year.

“All Victorians are urged to contribute and have their voice heard by nominating the state’s worst road at VicsWorstRoad.vote.”

Champ ramps up title record

The last round of the Corryong club's ladies' championships last Wednesday resulted in Ilma Clarke (pictured) winning the daily competition with 37 points from her nearest rival, Cheryl Smedley, on 33 points.

The win ensured Ilma claimed the overall championship to take her tally in the event to a record 20 victories.

Ilma said it was the last round that got her over the line for the club title.

"I had to put my head down as Cheryl was just behind me and I was pleased with my last round," she said.

In the first round of the Phil Cribb Trophy, Tony Jarvis, Dave McKimmie and Lance Noonan were trailing Bill Sheather by two points, setting up a tight finish.

While Dave and Bill dropped off the pace, Tony Jarvis posted nine points on the first four holes of the back nine but was just pipped at the finish by Lance's 10 points for the final four holes, 34 to 33. Bill Sheather hung on for third with 28 points.

This Sunday is the very prestigious President's Trophy day.

DOT-TO-DOT

PENGUIN FUN FACTS

Penguins go through an annual 'catastrophic moult', where they lose and regrow all their feathers in a short space of time.

There are 18 species of penguin, 10 of which are considered endangered.

All penguins are native to the southern hemisphere - they never share a habitat with polar bears.

The smallest penguin, the little penguin, weighs just 1.5kg and is only 30cm tall.

Emperor penguins are the only bird species to breed on sea ice.

The king of Norway knighted a penguin, Sir Nils Olav, who is mascot of his guard.

Tumba takes first tumble

Tumbarumba's undefeated run came to a halt on Saturday at the hands of Bullioh after the Dogs stormed home in the second half to record a 26-point victory.

The Roos shot from the blocks to pile on six goals to three in the first term and backed it up with a solid second quarter to go to the main break with a comfortable 25-point lead.

The third stanza was pivotal to the result as Bullioh slotted 6.4 to Tumba's 1.5 to enter the last quarter with a four-point margin.

Avenues to goal had dried up for the Roos and in the absence of Dan Hitchens, the Dogs' defence focused on Tyler Lampe, who battled for his three goals.

Bullioh went on with the job in the last term through the efficiency of more functional forward line which boasted eight goal scorers.

In the local derby, Corryong executed the upset of the season after looking gone at half time against a depleted Federal flock.

In a pedestrian and inaccurate effort, the Demons struggled to hit the scoreboard while Feds toiled away for a slender eight-point lead at the half way point.

The Dees' defence had its hands full with big man Ash Tyrell who finished with three goals, after being on the end of good lead up work from ruckman Harry Pole, Andrew Smith and Mitch McLean.

However, the game changed complexion in the second half when Demons' coach Danny De Marte, Darcy Potter and Jono Damm got motoring to help their team to a six goal to zip quarter.

The match then reverted to an arm wrestle as the two fatigued teams limped to the final siren for Corryong to get on the board with four points and remain in finals contention.

In local netball, top of the ladder Tumbarumba maintained a handy break over the field with a huge 51-goal win over Bullioh and second played ensured they remained in touch after a solid victory over Corryong.

This week
The match of the round pitches second and third against each other with percentage separating Cudgewa and Bullioh.

The Dogs go into the match having knocked over previously unbeaten Tumbarumba but Cudgewa have been in equally as good form and should have the forward firepower to get the points.

Federal hosts Tumbarumba and the SWans are looking down the barrel of a big loss if they are once again undermanned.

For when the risk of heat and grass tetany are at their peak. Rich in carbohydrates and those critical vitamins & minerals needed to beat the extreme challenge from fast growing lush green feeds.

- Easy To Use Powder
- Supports RUM Optimal Balance
- Minimise Dehydration

WHAT IS IT?

Apart from being low in Magnesium, fast growing green feeds contain compounds that actively block Magnesium availability to grazing animals. Grass Tetany is a metabolic disease of Cattle & Sheep that occurs when blood Magnesium levels drop below a critical level. Pregnant and lactating animals grazing lush green feeds with poor Magnesium availability are most at risk, but this condition can occur in dry stock during initial introduction to challenging feeds like grazing cereals. Stressed or scouring animals, particularly young calves lambs, are also vulnerable. Grass Tetany can kill animals very quickly. Affected animals are often highly excitable, walk with a stiff gait and can suffer muscle spasms and/or convulsions. Options for prevention are in store, key is start early...
