Vehicles vandalised

Corryong Police have interviewed and processed a youth over damage to two vehicles in Corryong on Sunday.

The apparent random act of vandalism occurred at a Harris Street residence at around 4.30pm.

Police were called and later took the alleged offender into custody and interviewed her over the incident.

Another local youth has also been issued with an infringement notice for carrying a knife which is considered a weapon under the law.

Officer-in-charge at Corryong, Sergeant Brendan Lampkin, said that police are concerned about the increasing level of anti-social behaviour, particularly among young people.

"We will be cracking down on this type of conduct in public and issuing infringement notices straight away, which carry fines of up to $1000," he said.

"People can take this as the only warning as we are taking a zero tolerance approach to anti-social behaviour."

Police have also been dealing with several recent incidents of domestic violence in the area.

Last Friday a man visiting family in the district was involved in a dispute and after leaving a Cudgewa residence he performed a burnout adjacent to the school park.

The incident was reported to police and the driver was subsequently detected travelling at 126kph in a 100km zone before eluding officers.

Screening van returns

One of BreastScreen Victoria's mobile screening vans will visit Corryong later this month to offer free breast screens.

The van last visited Corryong in 2020 and people who are due for a breast screen will be invited to attend this important health check.

It's recommended that women aged between 50 and 74 have a breast screen every two years. Regular screening is the best way to find breast cancer early - before symptoms present and when treatment is most likely to be successful.

Breast screens are with a female radiographer in a safe and friendly environment and take just 10 minutes. There's no need for a doctor's referral or Medicare card.

Covid-19 safety measures are in place on the van, such as physical distancing, to protect both the community and staff. Unless they are exempt, all clients who screen on the van in Corryong must wear a face mask.

BreastScreen Victoria's CEO, Rita Butera, encourages eligible people from Corryong and surrounds to screen on the van while it's in the area.

"We have two mobile screening service vans that travel around the state throughout the year," she said.

"Our visit to Corryong is aimed at ensuring women in every part of Victoria have access to potentially life-saving mammograms.

"The vans use the same high-quality digital radiography machines as our permanent clinics so everyone can get the best possible care, wherever they live."

The van will be located at 76 Hanson Street (beside the Towong Shire offices) from 14 November to 25 November, 2022.

Appointments for the Corryong van can be made online at breastscreen.org.au or by calling 13 20 50.

Food charity faces further struggles

A plan to locate a portable building on vacant Crown land at the western end of Strzelecki Way, Corryong has met with strong resistance from residents.

Following the demolition of the former Guides Hall in Harris Street in March, work was scheduled to locate a portable 'Commander' building for Corryong FoodShare Services on the site, however the discovery of a sinkhole on the block set back those plans.

The food charity has been operating out of the former Scout Group building at the other end of Strzelecki Way for several years but once the 1st Corryong Scouts Group was re-formed last year, it was forced to find new premises.

The Harris Street block became available but when it was not possible to put the modular building on it, permission was obtained from the Committee of Management for the Corryong Recreation Reserve to temporarily locate it on the former netball courts in Strzelecki Way while a solution was sought to the sinkhole issue.

A subsequent assessment of the Harris Street site indicated that earthworks costing up to $20,000 would be required before the 'Commander' unit could be safely located on the block.

Following a request from FoodShare Services for assistance, the Recreation Reserve committee then offered a block of land on Strzelecki Way for the location of its new premises.

However, once word got into the public domain, neighbouring residents were up in arms and started a petition objecting to the proposal.

It is understood that FoodShare Services has not submitted a planning application to Towong Shire Council to locate the building on the Strzelecki Way site.

Residents are objecting to a proposal to locate the modular building in Strzelecki Way.

Foodshare and Corryong Recreation Reserve recognised the community feedback to the proposal and are now working together to try and find a solution to installing the 'Commander' building on the Harris street site.

The residents' petition has been withdrawn, pending the outcome.

If anyone has any fundraising or grant ideas in this regard they are asked to contact Douglas FoodShare on 0427 762 and Carol Allen at 051.

Power station milestone marked

Large crowds turned out for a community open day and 50th birthday celebrations for the largest of the mighty Snowy Scheme's power stations, Tumut 3, at Talbingo.

With the iconic white penstocks as backdrop, local community members and visitors joined Snowy Hydro in acknowledging the remarkable role the Tumut 3 Power Station has played in providing critical energy supply and water services to eastern Australia since 1972.

Snowy Hydro acting CEO, Roger Whitby, said Tumut 3 was the first and biggest pumped-hydro facility in Australia.

"The Snowy Scheme's fast start, reliable clean energy generation keeps the lights on - literally - for millions of people and our pumped-hydro capability here at T3 is integral to this," Mr Whitby said.

"We generate at peak periods or when there is a shortfall of other energy sources and pump when demand and wholesale energy prices are low, reusing and recycling the water.

"Tumut 3 has been operating reliably and safely for 50 years, with decades more service to come.

"The longevity of this asset is testament to its quality design, engineering, construction and maintenance," Mr Whitby added.

"I would like to thank and express my appreciation to those who have played a part in Tumut 3's history, especially those former workers who have attended the event today."

Visitors to the event enjoyed a range of activities including power station tours, bus tours of the reservoir and penstocks, live music, food vendors, and activities for the kids from Snowy Hydro's Next Generation Education Hub and the NSW NPWS.

Many former workers attended the Tumut 3 open day.

Letters to the editor:-

Fuel reduction plans not working

I am writing on behalf of the many concerned and disillusioned citizens of the Upper Murray, to relay our disappointment and frustration at the mismanagement of Crown Land and Parks Victoria areas in regards to fuel reduction and fire mitigation works.

The Department of Environment, Land, Water & Planning (DELWP) and Parks Victoria rely on mosaic burnings for so-called fire control. Put simply, this does not work. You would liken this to recovering a vehicle with a chain, with three out of every four links missing.

Local input from CFA and landholders on areas that need fuel reduction is sought by DELWP but only as a token gesture it would seem as the information is often disregarded.

The local DELWP officers are employed to look after the region as they know the area and in many cases were born here and have a vested interest in keeping it safe. It seems ridiculous that they have to answer to city-centred bureaucrats who have no real connection to or understanding of the areas they are trying to control.

DELWP employees are told what days they can do reduction burning and what areas from central control. This is not workable!

Conditions vary from day to day and district to district in Victoria. They have varied micro weather and therefore different preferred times for optimal burning for fuel reduction. A better outcome would be had, if local knowledge was used.

It has been said that fuel reduction burning is too costly to do however the cost pales into insignificance compared to the loss of livelihoods, houses, livestock and native flora and fauna as well as the destruction of the environment including waterways, some of which will never be the same.

There is also a community cost with mental health issues and social upheaval as the result of the volunteer firefighter hours involved over the summer months of trying to save lives and property.

In 2019-20 the wild fire that hit the Upper Murray was unstoppable due to mismanagement of the bush particularly in the Pine Mountain National Park and Wabba Wilderness area.

Imagine our despair to learn that there are no plans to burn this area for another 15 years. This is particularly alarming as the area affected by the fire that touched the Nariel Valley in 2003 had not had a fuel reduction fire since and the 2019-20 fire burnt in our estimation at least ten times bigger and was more destructive, with the loss of many houses and irreparable damage to many areas of the environment.

The mosaic burn policy of DELWP and Parks Victoria is not fit for purpose. The environmental laws that these departments work under and administer have no regards for the safety of rural landholders and the long-term health of the environment.

Land managers should know the three elements of the fire triangle, only one of which they can control, which is fuel. The other two - weather and topography - are out of their control!

The boundary between Crown Land, Parks Victoria and private land needs a more co-operative approach between government agencies and private landholders in relation to all aspects of fire management, fire reduction, pest control and fence line protection.

This would help landholders protect their assets and livelihood.

Maybe the idea of the 'marginal mile' should be revisited.

Angus Maclean, Concerned property owner and Nariel CFA Captain.

Sportsters cause heads to spin

Few brands of automobile garner such a loyal following as MG, the British marque synonymous with light, affordable and fun to drive sports cars and a group of enthusiastic owners who visited Corryong on Monday were no exception.

Close to 40 aficionados, members of the Geelong MG Car Club, were guests of the Corryong Historic Machinery Club at a luncheon and the 19 cars from various eras attracted great interest from members. The club was scheduled to attend the machinery club rally in October which was cancelled due to the recent wet weather.

Geelong MG Club president, Peter Cribb, said "We were disappointed to miss out on the rally but we were determined to make the trip when conditions improved, so here we are!"

The club has around 550 members and will celebrate its 50th anniversary in 2023.

"We have been running an annual tour since 2000 and visit different regional areas to see the sights and in the process we give the local economy a boost," Mr Cribb said.

"We have been keen to visit the Upper Murray following the bushfires and then the pandemic.

"We have quite a few caravanners in our club and I'm sure many of them will be coming back" he said.

While in the area, the group visited Tintalra and the Man From Snowy River Museum.

Nurse undaunted by horrors of war

Part 2

By Honor Auchinleck
Continued from November 3, 2022 issue:-

On 5 October, 1916 Ivy Bartlett embarked for England and for her onward journey from Avonmouth in Bristol from where she returned once again to Australia. In Ivy's service records there is no explanation why she was posted to England and then back home. Once again she could have been escorting wounded servicemen returning from the theatre of war.

She was sent again to England in 1917 and the next noteworthy date in her wartime career is November 1918 when like many other nurses and servicemen at the time, she was diagnosed with influenza. After recovering, Ivy nursed briefly at the Australian Auxiliary Hospital at Dartford near London before embarking on her final voyage home to Australia.

Staff Nurse Ivy Bartlett arrived back in Melbourne on 4 January, 1919.

Her spirit was seemingly undiminished by her wartime service, as she sent out a Christmas card showing the print of the ship on which she had embarked for her homeward voyage.

Tellingly, the verse reads:
*Never a Christmas morning,
Never an old year ends,*

But somebody thinks of somebody,

Old days, old times, old friends.

According to an article in Table Talk (Melbourne) on Thursday 15 May, 1919 "Ivy was welcomed home at a successful function in the Corryong Memorial Hall on Friday evening, May 2, when the local branch of the RSSILA (The Returned Sailors and Soldiers Imperial League of Australia) tendered a welcome home social to Nurse Ivy Bartlett, who has returned after having been on active service for three years and eight months."

Table Talk records Ivy as "taking a quiet rest with her sister Mrs J T Simpson of 'The Retreat' in the beautiful valley of Nariel, Upper Murray." In addition to those strenuous months in 1915 nursing the wounded from Gallipoli, Ivy had made nine trips across the seas. It was understandable if the war years had taken their toll. Some nurses never recovered from the horrors of war and the sound of gunfire ringing in their ears.

On 2 September,

1920 Table Talk reported "Sister Ivy Bartlett (late of Caulfield Military Hospital) is taking a well earned holiday at the Chalet Mt Buffalo and is accompanied by her niece Miss Beatrice Simpson. Sister Bartlett has taken over 'Lyntor' Private Hospital, A'Beckett St, Kew."

It is possible that during her time at Caulfield Military Hospital Ivy assisted with nursing her brother Albert who had arrived as a stretcher case on 23 March, 1919. He died of a carcinoma in 11th Australian General Hospital at Caulfield on 17 September, 1919.

Along with their sister Helen who received a half share in Albert's estate and their father Sidney who received one sixth, Albert bequeathed Ivy a one third share. Albert and Ivy's father died of senile dementia on 9 June, 1922.

Following Ivy's return to civilian nursing, she nursed at 'Lyntor' Private Hospital for the next two or more years.

In 1923 Ivy gave 'Cricklewood House' in Frankston as her address for the despatch of her medals. She was living in Pakenham when on 28 July, 1926 in the Hawthorn Presbyterian Church she married the clever but shy Pakenham Shire Engineer, Percival Ferry Thwaites.

Both Ivy and Percival were gifted people who came from talented and well connected families. It was a pity they had no children but their relatives remember them fondly.

Percival and his inventor brother, Ernest, were keen pioneers in the automobile industry and were instrumental in starting the RACV.

Apparently Percival's white hair and long white beard made him look like George Bernard Shaw!

Percival Thwaites' father, Robert Ferry Thwaites, was a successful artist having painted with members of the Heidelberg School and whose paintings continue to command good prices at auction.

Ivy died in 1964 in Heidelberg. Both Ivy and Percival had much to offer their community and country and yet little is known of their latter years. By the 1960s and like many of her First World War nursing colleagues, Ivy had almost been forgotten. Many died in poverty.

There is little to remember the Bartlett family's contribution to Corryong except for the descendants of Ivy and Albert's relatives, a fine tombstone in the cemetery, the Corryong College Honour Board in the Memorial Hall and a street named after them.

Having survived the First World War our blazing nurse Ivy isn't mentioned on our War Memorial, unveiled in 1926.

It is time to commemorate Ivy's nursing service and her talented family's contribution to the early development of Corryong's medical services, culture and news media.

Keep an eye out for Simon White returning to Corryong and the unfolding of another fine local ANZAC story on the wall of the RSL Hall!

(Footnote: Thanks to everyone who has helped by providing information and photographs of Ivy Bartlett - Patrea Cook, Stephen Learmonth, Kim Winter, Heather Ford, Jeff Pickerd and the Man from Snowy River Museum and the Berwick and Pakenham Historical Societies).

Ivy Bartlett was commemorated in 1915 on an Australian special edition postage stamp.

Khancoban made a successful return to the Hills Zone pennant competition on Sunday at Batlow after an absence of four years with a solid 4-1 victory over Walwa.

In other matches, Holbrook sits on top of the ladder after a 5-0 whitewash of Adelong, Batlow defeated Welaregang 4-1 and defending champions Corryong lost 2-3 to Tumbarumba, after their number one player failed to show. Batlow hosted the first round as the Adelong course was unplayable because of the recent big wet.

Both Midweek and Weekend pennant teams had away matches last week

The Midweek side went to Wodonga and had a narrow four shot win 55-51, on a very cold and windy day - not fun!

On Saturday the Weekend team won at Yackandandah 68-29, in much nicer weather.

On Wednesday nine social bowlers played and the winners were Ron Kennett and Peter Griffiths. On Thursday the winners were Faye McKimmie and Joy Towers.

A few members had a roll-up on Sunday - don't forget there will be bowls on Sundays that have no club event scheduled. Just organise a few friends, make a phone call or two and go!

At the weekend two of our women - Cath Ross and Cheryl C Smedley - played in the Annual Holbrook Club Champion Pairs tournament. There were two games of 18 ends over two days and Cath and Cheryl won three of their four games and out of 24 teams ended in the prize money, coming 5th. Well done!

Business Bowls started during the week and will continue every Thursday for a few months - always a good fun night.

The Men's Singles Championship is scheduled for Sunday 20th November at 10.30am. Names in by Friday 4pm, please.

The Ladies Singles Championship will start on Thursday 1st December, names in by Wednesday 30th November at 4pm.
