SATURATION POINT

Widespread rainfall of up to 150ml across the Upper Murray over the weekend flooded roads and cut off access to many rural properties.

Emergency Vic has issued flood warnings for local waters and a 'watch and act' alert for the Murray River at Bringenbrong and Jingellic.

Snowy Hydro has also advised that the releases from Khancoban Pondage are currently at 113 cumecs (minor flood flow is 114 cumecs).

With more wet weather forecast for this weekend, motorists are urged to take extra care and not to travel through floodwaters.

Haines calls for unilateral anti corruption support

The Joint Select Committee tasked with scrutinising the National Anti-Corruption Commission (NACC) Bills has handed down its report, supporting the passage of the Bill and making six joint recommendations to the government.

Tabling the report in the House of Representatives last Thursday, Deputy Chair of the Committee and Member for Indi, Helen Haines, said the committee had delivered a consensus report.

"It was clear to the committee that the overwhelming majority of groups and individuals supported the establishment of a national anti-corruption commission and there was broad agreement in relation to a number of core elements of the Bills," Dr Haines said.

"It was important to me that the committee has a consensus report to support the passage of the Bill. The best decisions are reached through collaboration and consensus. If the NACC is to withstand changes of government and the whims of the times, it needs multi-partisan support.

"It is my sincere hope that this consensus continues beyond the committee and that all members of this Parliament vote as one to pass this Bill."

Despite the committee handing down a consensus report, Dr Haines signalled she would move amendments to the Bill when it comes up for debate.

"This is a good bill," she said.

"The establishment of a National Anti-Corruption Commission is a watershed moment in our nation's history but it can be better."

Dr Haines has made additional considerations regarding the exceptional circumstances test for holding public hearings, measures to increase transparency and independence of the commission's budget.

"The committee did not hear compelling evidence from the government in favour of retaining the exceptional circumstances test for holding public hearings and many experts questioned why it was necessary," she said.

"Together with other members of the committee I have recommended the government consider adding measures to increase the transparency around the budget of the NACC and measures for a special majority of the oversight committee to approve appointments of the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner.

"These measures would increase the independence of the NACC and protect it against being politicised by future governments."

Dr Haines also recommended 'pork barrelling' be explicitly included in the definition of corruption.

"If we are to ensure the NACC works to restore trust in politicians and government, we must ensure that it covers pork barrelling," she said.

Ballots drawn for state election

The candidate order for for the 2022 Victorian election on November 26 has now been determined, following the close of nominations last Friday.

A total of 740 candidates have nominated for the Lower House and 454 for the Upper House which represents an increase from the 887 candidates at the 2018 State election and a record number of candidates in both the Lower House and Upper House for a State election.

In the Benambra electorate, a field of eight candidates will do battle.

The order in which they will appear on the Lower House election ballot paper is:-

Mike Fuery (Animal Justice Party), Dean Rossiter (Liberal Democrats), Luke Brady (Australian Greens), Jacqui Hawkins (Independent), Janelle Stratton (Family First Victoria), Bill Tilley (Liberal), Mark Tait (Australian Labor Party), Adrian O'Brien (Freedom Party of Victoria).

The gap between the two front-runners for Benambra - incumbent Bill Tilley and Jacqui Hawkins - was only four per cent on a two-candidate-preferred basis after the last election in 2018 and latest polling has indicated a tightening race between the pair.

Both candidates have made health care their priority issue this time round, particularly the need for a new Albury Wodonga hospital.

The submission period for how-to-vote cards closes tomorrow and voters will be able to view them on the VEC website when they are registered.

Victorian Electoral Commission (VEC) commissioner, Warwick Gately, explained that how-to-vote cards are a suggestion only and that it is up to voters to decide which candidate receives which preference number - from first choice to the last choice.

"Almost half of informal votes cast are unintentionally informal," he said.

"This can be due to voters repeating or missing numbers or using ticks and crosses rather than numbers.

"If you're planning to vote during the early voting period, have a look at who has nominated for your district and region and start thinking about your preferences. At the voting centre, number your candidates according to your preferences and then take time to check that you have numbered all candidates without repeating or missing any numbers."

The VEC website also features short videos on how to complete ballot papers correctly in 23 different languages.

Early voting opened on Monday and the VEC has arranged extended early voting hours on several days in response to voter feedback.

Voters can view the short videos and early voting hours at vec.vic.gov.au

Independent candidate, Jacqui Hawkins, is expected to go close to toppling the incumbent, Bill Tilley.

Better days are coming

Basketball clinics, song writing, community art creations, face painting, a concert, inspiration from Olympic basketballer Jason Smith, sausages and community spirit - it's all happening in the centre of Corryong on Saturday November 26.

The Corryong Amateur Basketball Association will host a clinic at the Corryong College Eca centre from 8.30am, run by former Australian Olympian and Boomers' captain, Jason Smith, along with NBA and NBL player and fellow Olympian, Dave Anderson.

There will be a barbecue from midday onwards and a 'meet and greet' where the former Olympians will inspire, take questions and talk about their histories in the game and about life.

At 6pm that evening the Corryong Men's Shed will be sizzling sausages at Attree Park, with proceeds going to support the Thrive youth program. Local artists, including 'Boys on a Bash', will be playing, community members can paint a mural or two and the kids can have their face painted.

Musical act, Carter & Carter, will take to the stage at 7pm to showcase their brand of family country pop rock and support those who participated in the song writing workshops during the week to perform their compositions.

Jason Smith will also speak at the event and the community can join in the finale, singing Better Day and I Am Australian along with Golden Guitar winners Carter & Carter.

Aspiring musicians are invited to join in the community jam session at the former Corryong theatre in Donaldson Street on Friday 25th and for full details of the community, youth and school song writing workshops and more go to www.crestwayproductions.com/ lotl or call 0458 001 961.

Another topline event will be held in the Memorial Hall next month.

Big voices front for concert

The Corryong & District Memorial Hall Committee is very excited to be welcoming a star-studded line up to one of the biggest events ever held at the community facility.

The 'Upper Murray's Biggest Christmas Party' on Saturday December 3rd is a live stage performance featuring a nine-piece band, including Channel 7's The Voice finalist from the most recent 2022 series, Emily Jane Conidi, from Melbourne and 2021 season finalist, Penelope Pettigrew, from Sydney and finalist from the first season, Danni Da Ros, also from Sydney. The line-up also includes crowd favourite and runner-up on Australia's Got Talent, Greg Gould from Melbourne.

If you're a proud shower singer, car singer, closet musical theatre diva or dancing queen or just need a social night out with friends then this is your chance to sing and dance to the biggest sing-along with tunes from the 60s, 70s, 80s and 90s – think Elton John, Chuck Berry, Lionel Richie, ABBA, John Farnham, Cher, Madonna, Tina Turner, Dolly Parton, Whitney Houston and Olivia

Newton John. Better brush up on the dance moves to the Time Warp, Nutbush and YMCA!

This is the third event in this series of live performances after Towong Shire staged 'Blame it on the Movies' back in May and after strong demand the Memorial Hall Committee staged a subsequent show 'Motown to Memphis' in September.

Hall committee president, Austin Nicholas, said "Our committee was pleasantly surprised by the demand from the 'Motown to Memphis' event with almost 300 tickets sold.

"The committee subsequently sent out an electronic survey, receiving more than 40 responses and the support for further social events and live music performances was overwhelming."

Participating in 'the arts' has shown to offer health benefits, social benefits and community benefits. In Australia at least, there is a wave of interest in the performing arts as a tool for therapy, social inclusion, health promotion, enhancing community wellbeing and boosting local economies.

In recent years

governments at all levels have funded a number of community arts initiatives based on a growing body of evidence indicating that social connectedness and participation are conducive to individual and community health and wellbeing.

If there is somebody that you know who could do with a night out, this is their opportunity to subtly re-connect with the community for this fun night out.

Although the event layout is tables of ten, tickets are available to be purchased singularly or in any quantity a group requires.

"It's a great opportunity to get a group of friends together to celebrate the end of the year!" Mr Nicholas added.

Tickets are $40 plus a booking fee although with the support of Gateway Health, a limited number of subsidised tickets have been made available for $25 plus booking fee – both available online from uppermurray.eventbrite.com.au or by calling 0499 281 929. The event organisers have acknowledged Towong Shire Council, Red Cross and Gateway Health for their support of the event.

Letters to the editor:-

Post fire thanks

We have waited for nearly three years to put this letter in the paper!

We would like to tell everyone that we are finally in our home. We now would like to say a big thank you to everyone who has helped us along the way.

To our family who has been beside us when we lost our family home, you were here with a caravan, then material to build a small room inside the shearing shed, then a horse float filled with goodies and a unit for more room when Covid hit plus a truck load of furniture from Hoppers Crossing.

With support, supplies, help, hugs, phone calls you kept our spirits up and our mental health intact. We can't thank you enough for your support.

To friends who were there when we needed anything, called to see how we were or just listened to what we needed to get off our chest - thanks.

Our appreciation also goes to local businesses and clubs that gave us vouchers and money to help us out over the last three years and for calling out to see how we were and dropping off tools that were needed to fix things around the property.

To our case manager

Antona from Gateway Care, without your help many things wouldn't have happened. You arrived when our spirits were down but by the time you left you had us back on track for the next battle. At times we would have given up doing paper work but you took that stress off us and got it done as well as looking after our mental health. Getting us the unit from Bushfire Recovery Victoria (BRV) was a God send as we had two years in it which allowed us to stay on the property. You are now a very special friend of our family.

Fencing for Fires, Blaze Aid and the Uniting Church of Australia came to our aid in getting fencing done on our property and thanks go to the school kids from Geelong who stepped up and helped even though they had never fenced before. Thanks also to those for just dropping off fencing material without us asking.

To Food Bank who would turn up with a bag or box of food or personal items at the caravan door, it wasn't just food it was gift vouchers for fuel or goods from local businesses and also without you checking on us for our health or mind we may not have got through the last three years. Thanks.

We have listened and watched what people have said about the Red Cross such as "We not going to give them money as it doesn't get to the people who need it." Well we are here to tell you that we were given every grant they had going. They helped us out when Greg went to Wodonga Hospital and they covered his medical costs. They rang to check on us and without our own Red Cross ladies asking how are you going we wouldn't have got through that tough time. Without their help we may not be in this beautiful home we have now so a big 'thank you'.

To the strangers that sent pens, note pads, tennis racquets or vouchers in the mail; to the ones that dropped in with plants, gift cards, money or a trailer of hay - a big thank you. To a special group who love their fishing, thanks for the gear you gave Greg - he was blown away.

To the Hay Runners and the many other farmers in the area, thanks for the loads of hay - they were invaluable.

I (Alice) would personally like to thank the school kids for saying how sorry they were to hear we had lost our home then ask how are you and where are you living. To a brother and sister who gave me a voucher and money towards my garden, you left me in tears.

To a special Hayley T for keeping me warm on the school crossing with hot coffees when the days was not so good and there was a few others that surprised me too. Thanks a lot.

To Cavalier Homes, many thanks for building our beautiful home we are now in. We know you had trouble getting workers to come up to our beautiful country and Covid didn't help either. Thanks so much for building our dream home.

To finish off, there may be many more people out there that we haven't said thanks to so to the local community thank you for being there when we needed you.

Thank you all!
Greg and Alice Albert, Cudgewa.

Rotary scores for young golfers

After more than two years of 'marking time', the Corryong Golf Club is undertaking several course improvements and implementing a number of programs to encourage participation in the sport.

The recent wet weather has caused havoc with play but the club plans to run its postponed 'Get into Golf for Women' program in the new year as well as starting a youth development program.

The latter initiative has been supported by a $4500 grant from the Rotary Club of Corryong for new equipment and training.

The youth program will be a joint exercise with the Cor4ryong club, Murray District Golf Association and local schools.

Kelly Galbraith (right) thanks Rotary's Matt Spurgeon for a grant to assist young golfers.

Corryong men's golf club president, Kelly Galbraith, said the club is excited to introducing the introductory programs and thanked Rotary for its generous contribution.

"This grant will allow us to set up the youth program and develop pathways for local young people if they want to progress in the sport," he said.

Upper Murray Sport

Riders saddle up for new season

The Upper Murray Pony Club (UMPC) is set to gallop into 2023.

There has been a decline in the club's riding memberships in recent years but a small but dedicated committee has kept things ticking along in the background.

Twelve months ago it was considered that putting the club into recession would be the best option, however after discussions with the sport's governing body, at both a national and state level, it was decided to avoid this if possible.

"Pony Club Australia - NSW has been a huge support along with our Zone 20 committee and associated clubs," said club secretary, Kerryn Jackson.

"So, here we are, putting things into place to make a comeback in 2023."

The move from the Tintalra Recreation Reserve to the Corryong

Recreation Reserve has been seen as a positive step forward for the club.

"Access to better facilities and the opportunity to work closely with the committee of management and with other user groups will greatly enhance the pony club experience for our members," Ms Jackson said.

"We will have access to all of the facilities that are currently utilised during the Man from Snowy River Bush Festival and as such, the committee is looking forward to running some wonderful events in Corryong.

"We will kick off 2023 with a three-day camp at Tom Groggin, which will run from January 26th to 28th. Those attending will have the opportunity to participate in mounted games, cattle handling, trail rides, jumping and much more.

"There has been a lot of interest in this camp and while priority will be given to UMPC members, we will also welcome members from other clubs that are affiliated with Pony Club NSW.

"Following on from the camp, we will commence our monthly rallies from February. Members can expect a wide variety of activities including cross country, dressage, jumping, games and we even hope to run a campdraft rally later in the year.

"Next year will also see the return of the Annual Challenge Training Camp on the June long weekend.

"This event hasn't run for a few years now but we are working on making it bigger and better than ever."

Early in October, the Upper Murray club was proud to sponsor the Bush Gymkhana at the Corryong Show.

"We were able to provide equipment, prizes and a cash donation," Ms Jackson said.

"It was great to see the local kids having fun and to see the pony club equipment being dusted off and utilised once more.

Starting from our first rally in February, we will be able to offer a range of gear for our members to borrow for club events and competitions.

"The purchase of compliant riding boots, helmets and jump vests, along with saddle cloths, shirts, jumpers and ties can quickly add up to hundreds of dollars for families, so the club is purchasing many of these items to loan out to members.

Tom Turnbull with the Boys' Encouragement Prize.

"This is just one example of what we're doing to help families who might feel that pony club is now unaffordable for them."

On Saturday December 3rd, an information and membership session will be held at Corryong Recreation Reserve between 11.30am and 1.30pm. This will give potential members the opportunity to enjoy a sausage sizzle and to find out more about the UMPC.

"We are offering a substantial discount on 2023 Riding Memberships and those from NSW can also utilise their Active Kids vouchers," Ms Jackson said.

"Riding Memberships now cover a much wider age range, meaning that those over 25 years can join in the fun too. We hope that this will encourage more people to get in the saddle once a month and join in rally day activities."

For more information or to enquire about membership, contact Kerryn Jackson on 0459 164 428 or email umpc.nsw@gmail.com.
