Brolgas return to Towong

John Wood (right) and Phil Davis put the finishing touches to the new artwork.

The last of four large-scale artwork pieces was installed at Towong this week as part of Stage 2 of the Great River Road touring route project.

The newest sculpture depicts two brolgas in a courtship dance on the Towong Walking Trail.

With assistance from Murray Arts, a community-based panel evaluated more than 35 submissions for the four locations in Stage 2 and following the panel's recommendation, Towong Shire Council commissioned three artists to deliver the sculptures.

Xavier Pinard was responsible for the 'Bridge to Moon' sculpture at Talgarno and in collaboration with Glennys Briggs, installed the 'Lace Monitor' sculpture at Pine Mountain.

Along with the brolgas sculpture, John Wood installed the 'Your Journey' artwork at the Bellbridge Gateway. Poet David Gilby also worked with him on both installations.

Famed for their elaborate courtship dance, brolgas are one of Australia's most iconic birds and many of the older local generation will recall a flock of brolgas making their home at the wetlands near the turn-off at Towong many years ago.

Brolgas are one of Australia's largest flying birds, standing up to a metre tall and having a wing span up to 2.4 metres.

Fire money funnelled to the city

Member for Benambra, Bill Tilley, has called for greater parity in funding the state's fire services from the fire service property levy.

Victorian Treasurer, Tim Pallas, released data in response to Mr Tilley's Question on Notice in early September and said the revenue was going to Victorian firefighting.

However, Mr Tilley claims that a review of the State Budget shows the bulk of the money goes to paid firefighters in Melbourne.

"The will strip $10 million from the district with little or no return to CFA firefighters," he said.

"In the next 12 months ratepayers in Wodonga ($5.5m), Towong ($1.8m) and Indigo ($2.7m) will fork out an extra 23 per cent on the tax that is supposed to fund fire services.

"Farmers are hit hardest by the latest tax hike - their levy close to double the previous year and five times what multinational renewable energy companies pay on nearby land."

Mr Tilley said there needed to be greater parity in the funding.

"Farmers, who form a large part of our CFA brigades, should be outraged," he said.

"Their rate has almost doubled and yet, renewable energy companies get a discount because of a what the government describes as 'public benefit'.

"I would have thought being a volunteer firefighter might be of some public benefit too.

"But instead, they are fighting fires with old equipment and from sheds that are long past their use by date."

"This year's state budget increased CFA funding by about three per cent, while the heavily unionised Fire Rescue Victoria budget received a $200m, about a 20 per cent boost."

Mr Tilley said compounding the issue was the ageing fleet of firefighting equipment.

"More than 75 per cent of the CFA fleet is more than 10 years old and about a third more than 20 years old," he said.

"CFA brigades have had three years of non-delivery - pictures of Labor MPs standing in front of tankers from long past budgets is an insult.

"This money should be buying new tankers and upgrading fire sheds in the regions rather than paying the overtime bill for city firefighters."

Hunger relief appeal launched

Visiting services are provided at FoodShare Corryong by (from left) Maria Berry (elders rights advocacy) and Deb Adams (homelessness worker), who are with police officers Brendan Lampkin and Adele Burnett (general police support) and Carol Allen.

FoodShare services across the region are urging the community to help fill empty plates this holiday season.

At this time of year, the pressure on families intensifies as children finish school and end of year celebrations begin.

Donations to the FoodShare Christmas Hunger Relief Appeal will help families facing hardship to enjoy a Christmas dinner and experience the simple pleasures of the season.

"FoodShare is seeing a growing and urgent need for both emergency and regular food assistance for those experiencing food insecurity," said Katrina Pawley, FoodShare CEO.

"We are asking for community support for donations of money and non-perishable food items to help meet this critical need."

FoodShare provides food to communities across the region including Wodonga, Beechworth and Wangaratta.

Every donation this Christmas, whether big or small, can make a significant difference in the lives of those struggling to put food on the table.

People can help by donating money to allow FoodShare to purchase fresh produce and other essentials or they can contribute non-perishable food such as canned goods, pasta, rice and tea and coffee.

For more information or to make a donation, visit www.foodshare.org.au.

As well as food assistance, Corryong Foodshare regularly hosts other service providers by appointment including the Salvation Army (homelessness worker), community legal aid, elders rights advocacy, community paramedics and a financial counsellor.

The service has operated from new premises in Harris Street for just over a year and is operated solely by volunteers under the guidance of co-ordinators Pastors Douglas and Carol Allen.

Corryong Food Share provides material assistance to approximately 150 families and individuals in Corryong and surrounds including Walwa and Nariel.

"We have received significant financial and food support from Border Trust, Corryong Rotary and the local community," said Pastor Carol Allen.

"In particular, special mention should be made of the contributions from Val and Col Low at Upper Murray Pizza Cafe, Steve Kruger at the Corryong Pharmacy and the Mountain View Motel for having our donation tins at their businesses."

From January 9th, 2025 Corryong FoodShare will operate under different opening hours - Wednesdays only from 8.30am to 2.30pm.

The brolgas are back

The brolgas sculpture was an overwhelming choice for the site in consultations with the Towong community.

John Wood said the work took around 1000 hours to complete.

The sculpture is made from mild steel plate with some solid elements, undergoes a galvanising dip and then acid etching is used to create its different hues.

Stage 2 of the Great River Road project involves the delivery of eight key projects with most identified by the Shire's Community Recovery Committees to assist in the ongoing recovery process including additional wayside stops, walking trails and a marketing campaign.

The project is funded by a $5 million grant from the Victorian government's Bushfire Recovery Regional Economic Stimulus and Resilience Fund.

Water users can have a say at forum

North East Water is inviting residential and business customers to participate in its next round of community engagement as it develops its next Price Submission, which sets out the proposed fees and charges customers will pay from 1 July 2026.

Managing Director, Jo Murdoch, said North East Water had already engaged customers through focus groups, workshops, surveys, pop-up kiosks, webinars, and a bill simulator.

"The next phase, starting in early 2025, is a crucial part of our engagement - a deliberative forum that will run over five sessions from late-January to mid-March," she said.

Register your interest at www.newater.com.au/ps by 5pm Friday, December 13th.

New leaders back innovation

Upper Murray Inc. (UMI) welcomed a large crowd last Thursday night at Café Corryong Brew, who were inspired by the sculpture entrepreneur, David Handley, and Chris Mirams from the Alpine Valley's Community Leadership Program (AVCLP).

David Handley shared his experience of developing the Snowy Valleys Sculpture Trail, how he had to adapt an initial idea and integrate community feedback to develop a new outcome that benefited and was supported by all.

He also gave some indications of how very successful it is from a tourist visitation perspective.

The Leadership Panel at the event (pictured) shared an honest, touching account of how they learned community leadership under the Alpine Valleys program; how it made them more conscious of their perception about themselves and others; and their subsequent motivation to cross-motivate their cohort to innovate in their businesses and think more holistically about their contribution to community.

There was encouragement to all agriculture-related people to consider the 2025 program. Applications are open through the AVCLP website.

UMI chair, Jo Mackinnon, invited Matt Thomas from Department of Energy, Environment and Climate Action (DEECA) to explain the current streams of Forestry Transition funds available to support economic development.

She concluded with an update on possible community engagement through current projects and UMI membership.

The annual general meeting of UMI is on Thursday November 28th at the Corryong Neighbourhood Centre (39 Hanson St.) at 5.30pm.

Crossing closed for final touch-

Transport for NSW has advised that it will carry out road sealing work on Towong Bridge this coming Friday and Saturday, which will require it to be closed for those two days.

A final seal will be applied to the concrete bridge deck and will provide a stronger, smoother and safer crossing over the Murray River.

Work will be carried out on the NSW side of the river near Towong Bridge camping reserve from 8.30am to 2.00pm on both days.

The shared pathway will also be closed for the safety of workers and the community.

The campground

on the NSW side of the bridge will remain open but is only accessible from Towong Road on the NSW side of the river.

Detours will be in place with motorists advised to cross the Murray River via Bringinbrong Bridge to the south or Tintaldr Bridge to the north, adding about 20 minutes to journeys.

Letters to the Editor:-

Amazing this Council!

Now we know where we live with multiple new signage on the Murray Valley Highway

- Berringama, Shelley, Koetong, Bullioh.

However, council rate notices rarely had issues locating their destination.

Hopefully, VicRoads can utilise this valuable new information to locate the residential address of new and existing potholes and undertake essential maintenance works!

Robert J Wood, Berringama.

Loving mother fought with all her strength

Family and friends of a young wife and mother who has lost her battle with an aggressive form of cancer, abided by her wishes when they wore bright colours to farewell her at a graveside service in Corryong.

Cyndal Tiarne Clarke (nee Thorpe) was diagnosed with triple-negative breast cancer two years ago and vowed to fight it and her regular scans were showing up clear up to March this year. However, in May nodules were discovered on her lung and by September the cancer had spread to her brain. Despite the support of her team at the Albury-Wodonga Regional Cancer Centre and intensive radiation treatments, Cyndal (36) sadly passed away on October 29th.

Cyndal was married to Jordan and the couple have three children - Scarlet (8), Lockyer (5) and Callie (3). She was also a stepmother to Livv (18) and Zane (19).

Students make special space for heroes

Khancoban Year 5/6 students have been working on a special project this year to commemorate WWI soldiers from the town and surrounding district.

While preparing for the school's Anzac Service, it was realised that Khancoban does not have a permanent war memorial in the town.

The students decided they would like to plant a grove of trees in the school playground and dedicate each tree to a local WWI soldier inscribed on the town's honour board.

There are 11 soldiers who have connections to Khancoban.

As well as William Bradney, Oswald Rixon, Ernest Whitehead and William Chisholm there are three sets of brothers - Andrew and Michael Hickey; Edgar and James Sheather; and Albert, Charles and Walter Mildren.

The students wrote

many letters to businesses asking for donations to help with costs and were rewarded with generous contributions from groups such as the Khancoban United Volunteers Association (KUVA), the Commercial Club in Albury and Bunnings as well as interested local people.

They investigated what types of trees might be suitable for the project and chose a variety of deciduous trees to add to the autumn colours in the town. They also made posters advertising the special Remembrance Day Service and tree planting at the school.

On Monday 11 November, the students commemorated Remembrance Day with a special service in the school playground. Each student spoke about a particular soldier, giving a short biography of his life and his connection to Khancoban.

This information is now being compiled into a Memorial Book which will be available for visitors to access.

The students planted the trees and are looking forward to adding permanent metal plaques and a seating area to make the memorial an inviting and peaceful place for Khancoban residents to remember their heroes.

Snowy survey shapes community involvement

Findings from Snowy Hydro's 2024 Community Insights research have now been published with opportunities for locals to attend in-person information sessions to ask questions and provide feedback.

The research campaign conducted earlier in the year invited all community members across the region to provide their opinions and experiences related to Snowy Hydro operations and the Snowy 2.0 project.

Insights gathered from the survey will help shape Snowy Hydro's approach to community engagement and commitment to supporting positive social outcomes, according to Chief Corporate Affairs Officer, Scott MacKillop.

"We're really grateful that people gave up their time to talk to us about how they see Snowy Hydro in the community and share their ideas," he said. The research told us there is strong support for Snowy Hydro and the Snowy 2.0 project across the region.

"There was also great feedback around how Snowy Hydro can continue to evolve the way it engages with local communities, which we are using to inform our approach going forward.

"The community also made it clear that there is a strong expectation that Snowy Hydro continues to have a positive impact on the region, particularly in terms of the legacy Snowy 2.0 leaves for the region after construction.

"We look forward to talking with people at the information sessions so they can ask questions and find out more about the recommendations being developed by the Snowy Hydro team."

The Snowy Hydro community information sessions being held throughout the Snowy Mountains and surrounding areas will give community members a chance to hear about the research findings, ask questions and give us their feedback.

The sessions will also include updates on regional water operations and Snowy 2.0 project construction progress including plans for a fourth tunnel boring machine and milestones achieved at the Tantangara and Lobs Hole worksites.

Locally, information sessions will be held on December 2nd at the Upper Murray Events Centre from 6pm - 7.30pm; and on December 3rd at the Khancoban Community Hall from 5pm - 6.30pm.

Stories break down gender stereotypes

Upper Murray Family Care (UMFC) has announced a series of book readings designed to challenge and break down harmful gender stereotypes.

Through the engaging book 'Who Am I? I Am ME!' by Jayne Sanders, children can explore themes such as boys can wear ballet skirts and girls can dress as firefighters, promoting inclusivity and equality.

UMFC will be trekking across North East Victoria and Southern NSW to host 18 Storytime sessions as part of its commitment to the primary prevention of gender-based violence.

This initiative aligns with the 16 Days Against Gender-Based Violence Campaign in November and December. The sessions aim to instil positive messages of gender equality and respect while giving children the opportunity to embrace their unique identities.

UMFC's Storytime sessions are made possible through a strong network of local partners, including Zonta, local councils and various community organisations dedicated to ending gender-based violence.

These free events will take place at libraries and other venues throughout the region, featuring stories that challenge traditional gender roles and encourage children to imagine a world free from stereotypes.

In addition to the readings, UMFC staff will lead fun, hands-on craft activities that reinforce the themes of the story, offering a creative space for children and families to engage with the material. To support parents and caregivers, UMFC will also provide valuable resources to help continue the conversation at home.

"We are thrilled by the incredible support from our local community," said UMFC CEO, Felicity Williams.

"Organisations like Boomerang Bags Wangaratta, who generously donated fabric for our craft activities, and North East Health Wangaratta, who are delivering 16 Days Storytime packs to children admitted to hospital during the campaign, have shown how much people care about creating change.

"We look forward to families enjoying these events together and spreading the important messages of respect and equality."

Locally, a Storytime session will be held at the Elyne Mitchell Library in Corryong on Monday December 2nd at 10am.

To see the full schedule of events, visit www.umfc.com.au/events/ or follow UMFC on Facebook for updates.

Fire training boosted on land and in the air

The CFA is enhancing its driver training capability across Victoria thanks to 10 new driver training trucks along with additional driving educators.

Deputy Chief Officer Operational Doctrine and Training, Rohan Luke, said the new custom designed driver training trucks will be delivered to CFA training grounds across the state which will provide greater access to driver training without the need to draw on operational vehicles.

"These trucks have been built to replicate the size, weight and configuration of operational firefighting vehicles," Mr Luke said.

"We're one of the first in the Australian fire services to have purpose-built driver training trucks for our volunteers to use for driver training.

"Driver training courses are important for future capability within a brigade as they provide the key elements to ensure our drivers operate safely in high-risk environments whilst protecting Victorian communities."

The 10 new trucks, which cost a total of $2.2 million, can be used for both on road and 4x4 off road driver training as they are self-sufficient, containing everything the trainer needs to deliver driver training.

CFA recently offered the first female only Driver Educator Course (DEC) which six women have successfully completed.

CFA Commander State

Driving, Malcolm Hayes, said this group of newly qualified women will soon be delivering driver training to brigades in their area and across the state when required.

"As a result of this female-only course, we will have tripled the amount of volunteer female driver educators in CFA which is an incredible achievement and asset for the future of driver training," Mr Hayes said.

"While we always encourage any CFA members to undertake the course, we do find creating female only courses provides a more comfortable space and environment for them to train."

Fire fighters take flight

The CFA has also created a world-first mixed reality fire aviation simulator which will improve the training and skills of hundreds of the state's eyes in the sky.

The aviation simulator has state-of-the-art mixed reality goggles with a 280-degree view of the surrounding landscape which provides real-world training and skill testing in a safe, controlled environment.

A prototype trailer of the aviation simulator was originally designed and developed by CFA Aviation Commander, John Katakouzinis AFSM, who started the project in his garage during the pandemic lockdown in 2020. This trailer-based prototype is still being utilised by aviation members across the state.

Mr Katakouzinis said due to the success of the prototype, the need for a permanent aviation simulator became evident.

"The simulator allows aviation volunteers and staff to undertake mapping, air attack missions, direct aircraft and practise communication and radio skills in a simulated environment," he explained.

"It replicates the interior of an aircraft and uses photorealistic mapping software and communication technology to immerse pilots and students in the flight experience.

"It's also designed to be programmed to train students in any scenario in any of the aircraft used for aerial firefighting in Australia including re-enacting past operations for pre-season training."

Both the prototype and new permanent aviation simulators have achieved successful training outcomes with more than 300 Air Attack Supervisors, Air Observers and Airborne Mission Commanders trained or re-accredited over the past few years.

CFA Chief Officer, Jason Heffernan, commended Mr Katakouzinis and everyone who worked hard to develop this world-first technology.

"The new aviation simulator at Bangholme as well as the existing simulator trailer are vital assets for aviation training across Victoria," he said.

"Aviation is important for providing intelligence and support to our crews on the ground during a fire and we're excited to be able to share this simulator with our partner agencies.

"There has already been further interest from our airborne partners with a portable aviation trailer being built for NSW Parks and Wildlife.

The $640,000 project was jointly funded by CFA and the Department of Energy, Environment and Climate Action (DEECA)

Community called on to to share footage

A new road safety initiative uses de-identified footage of drivers behaving badly to demonstrate dangerous driving and encourage Victorians to submit their own footage to Crime Stoppers and help keep our roads safe.

Data from the Transport Accident Commission (TAC) shows that more than 1,200 lives have been lost on Victorian roads over the past five years with 295 recorded in 2023 - he highest number of lives lost on Victorian roads in 15 years.

There have been 242 lives lost to date on Victorian roads in 2024. With more people installing dashcams or carrying recording devices, Chief Executive of Crime Stoppers Victoria, Stella Smith, says that every person can play a role in road safety.

"Each one of us has the power to make a difference," she said.

"By reporting what you see, you can help prevent tragic incidents before they occur. Even one life lost on our roads is one too many."

Crime Stoppers encourages the community to share footage through their online platform, which provides the option to remain anonymous and reports can be completed on mobile or computer.

Publicly sharing footage remains a rare and significant step for Crime Stoppers with Ms Smith explaining "We do not take the decision to release footage lightly but we believe showing real examples of high-risk driving allows the community to see the type of footage that can assist in investigations.

"Whether you are a motorist, motorcyclist, pedestrian or cyclist - road safety is everyone's responsibility, and we all have a role to play in reducing road trauma.

Victoria Police Road Policing Assistant Commissioner, Glenn Weir, cautioned that high-risk drivers will be held accountable.

"If you engage in risk taking behaviours on our roads, even if the police don't always see you, be aware that other people may report you," he warned.

"The community is watching, and it is only a matter of time before you face the consequences."

The initiative does not encourage filming while driving. However, if you witness dangerous driving and it is captured on a dashcam or recorded safely, you can upload your footage at crimestoppersvic.com.au.

Internet divide needs fixing

Member for Indi, Helen Haines, has called for the Federal government to significantly increase its investment in regional telecommunications, citing the persistent internet divide between the cities and the bush.

Dr Haines submission to the triannual Regional Telecommunications Infrastructure Review made nine recommendations to improve phone and internet access for communities in regional Australia.

Her recommendations focus on eradicating blackspots, increasing resilience during emergencies and natural disasters, supporting businesses and primary producers and fixing network congestion.

"The federal government needs to do better, because what I hear time and time again is that telecommunications aren't up to scratch in regional, rural and remote Australia," Dr Haines said.

"More than ever, we work online, we study online, we access health services online and we keep in touch with our friends and family online but we can't do any of these things if we can't connect. If we can't connect then we fall behind.

"Poor telecommunications are a barrier to prosperity and create significant challenges for our communities in times of emergency."

Since being elected in 2019, Dr Haines has secured funding for 13 new phone towers in Indi with four towers due to come online in 2024. Under independent representation, Indi is the most successful federal electorate in Victoria to secure funding under the Commonwealth Mobile Black Spot Program but Dr Haines said the work shouldn't stop there.

"The federal government has an ongoing responsibility to ensure regional communities have access to stable, affordable, high-speed telecommunications, she said.

"Regional communities can't afford second-rate telecommunications when we rely so heavily on them to run businesses, work and study from home, and access healthcare services.

"We've been catching up after decades of neglect but our regions should not have to settle for services that still lag behind metropolitan areas."

In May, Dr Haines welcomed the Regional Telecommunications Infrastructure Review Committee to Benalla, where she hosted a roundtable with Mayors and CEOs of Indi's nine local governments.

"One message I heard loud and clear was the need for more generators and batteries to provide backup to mobile phone towers when the power goes out," she said.

"That's why my submission recommended the government increase funding for programs that fund generators and batteries for our remote mobile phone towers.

"We must increase resilience now before the next fire or flood arrives, not after. We need to increase funding for programs that fund community energy nodes and power backup for mobile phone towers in extreme weather events."

With the final report due before the end of this year, Dr Haines will be watching to see what this government's plan is for closing the digital divide.

"Regional communities have had enough of sub-standard services," she said.

"It stops local communities and businesses from achieving their full potential, it threatens our safety and it is a handbrake on regional development."

Dr Haines is currently consulting with the Indi Telecommunications

Advisory Group to secure funds under two open programs providing $75 million in funds for better telecommunications infrastructure.

"Since becoming the Independent Member for Indi, I have worked tirelessly to bring local communities, councils and other organisations together to improve phone and internet connectivity across our region and I won't give up," she vowed.

Opportunity exists for fairer rates

With the announcements of Victoria's local government area elections last week, the Victorian Farmers Federation (VFF) says new councillors must listen to communities to deliver fairer rating strategies.

VFF President, Emma Germano, said the VFF has previously observed unfair rate increases for farmers in many areas, often driven by sudden and unexpected increases in the valuation of farmland.

"How can farmers be expected to run their businesses when they face huge and unexpected increases in their rates?" she queried.

"These rate increases bear no relationship to the farmer's production or income. The situation is simply grossly unfair. While in many areas farmers are funding an increasing proportion of the council's revenue, they are not receiving a fair share of council services.

"By using differential rating councils can adjust the cents in the dollar rates payable to even out fluctuations and ensure a fair distribution of the rates burden across land types," Ms Germano said.

The VFF believes that to achieve this each council should spell out its approach in a comprehensive rates strategy.

"It's critical that the newly elected councils protect farmers and ensures a fair distribution of the rates burden," Ms Germano said.

Mitchell scores again

Local horseman, Adam Wheeler, in action at the weekend.

Multiple winner of the Man From Snowy River Challenge, John Mitchell, has seamlessly transferred his horemanship skills to the campdrafting arena. Mitchell won the Whiteley's Livestock Transport Feature Open at the Corryong Campdraft on the weekend riding Duck 'n' Daisy, taking home more than $10,000 in cash and prizes.

With the Bias

On Saturday Corryong welcomed Yackandandah Community Bowling Club to "our patch". More used to playing on their own and other grass greens, the Yack team got off to a slow start and seemed to struggle most of the day with the different line and length required of the synthetic green.

The Corryong teams settled in early with all three teams having comfortable wins and a maximum 14 points for the day. A friendly and enjoyable afternoon was had all round.

Final results:- Team skipped by Peter Mongan 40-8, Simon Donadon 41-3, Rowan Whitehead 33-10.

A couple of amendments have btheour handbook.

Firstly, the Ladies Club Pairs has been rescheduled to December 12th. Get your names in for this by December 11th.

Also, the date for the Christmas breakup has been rescheduled to Sunday December 15th. On this day we have bowls at 1pm and then a BBQ later. Raffle tickets are already on sale for the raffle, which is for a wheelie bowls bag. During the week Thursday winners were Cheryl C Smedley and Wilma Hill.

Last Tuesday the Midweek Pennant team lost at Lavington. This week we host Commercial Club. The Weekend team had a win against Kiewa.

The Championship Singles are coming up quite soon - the men on Sunday November 24th and the ladies on Thursday November 28th. Entry lists are up on the notice board.

Pennant washed out

The first round of the Hills Zone pennant competition, scheduled for Holbrook on Sunday, was cancelled as high winds and storms lashed the region. The committee has cancelled the round and teams will receive 2½ points each.

The gale force winds also caused damage on the Corryong golf course with at least three trees and a couple of large limbs being felled.

The first meeting of the new combined committee will be held on Friday November 29th at the club at 6pm. All members are welcome to attend. Agenda items can be emailed to Belinda Attree at billatree@hotmail.com. A reminder that the dates for the foursomes championships have been changed. The Mixed

This tree came down on the 3rd fairway on Sunday morning - shortly after a foolhardy trio of frustrated pennant golfers had played the hole!

Welaregang

It took the highest score of the summer so far but consistency from Laurie Williams over the last three weeks eventually saw him break through for a win in R4 with a very good 22 points. Paul Land found some form with 19 points, snatching second place on a countback from Tony Jarvis.

The win gives Laurie an early lead in the Summer Cup competition which is looking like being a very close contest over the next few months.

R5 will tee off on Saturday at 9, names in by 8.30am - visitors are most welcome.

With the first pennant round called off last Sunday, the team will refocus and be ready for Adelong in Corryong on Sunday week.

Allicin + Sulphur Blocks

Naturally repels flies & ticks on livestock while providing essential nutrients.

Olsson's Allicin + Sulphur helps reduce fly, tick and lice burden. It also provides sulphur & nutrients to encourage optimal microbial growth & ammonia balance.

Allicin + Sulphur provides an effective, natural and ongoing solution to fly, tick and lice burden. In trials, our formulation has reduced the burden to less than 100 flies per animal (the threshold to drench). For cattle, sheep, horses & goats. Patent pending.
